Speaking the Truth in Love

Air Date: April 23, 2020

Ron: When a relationship feels fragile, it's tempting to stop speaking the truth.

Announcer: For FamilyLife Blended®, here's Ron Deal.

Ron: New friendships...new marriages...new stepfamilies have the same temptation: to avoid saying the hard thing. Why? Because the relationship feels fragile, you know, like you're not sure if it's strong enough to handle the truth.

Scripture, in Ephesians 4 says we should put off falsehood and speak truth. We can even be angry, but do so without sin, managing the anger so that it doesn't corrupt the conversation. So, in your home, instead of walking on eggshells, share your thoughts and feelings in a healthy, collaborative manner. Don't sugarcoat the truth. Besides maybe the shells aren't as brittle as you think. For FamilyLife Blended, I'm Ron Deal.
