Slow to Anger (Proverbs 16:32)

Air date: June 3, 2020

Ron: When it comes to social justice, facing adversity with self-control has the biggest impact.

Announcer: For FamilyLife Blended®, here's Ron Deal.

Ron: People like Martin Luther King, Jr. and Nelson Mandela insisted on peaceful protests that invited the world to listen. You see, they understood what Proverbs 16 in the Bible teaches: that being slow to anger is better than being mighty, and that self-control is powerful. Strength under control carries influence.

What about you in your home? Are you patient with those who frustrate or mistreat you? Assertively speaking up for what God declares good and right without using anger as a weapon of choice? If not, start making your home a better place by controlling yourself. For FamilyLife Blended, I'm Ron Deal.
